

Hello

As a resident of Indiana I can now enjoy my evenings in peace, before the no call law went into effect, I would get several calls an evening from telemarketing companies, now I get none. The Indiana law has been extremely effective in stopping these calls. I would hate to see the federal government step in and weaken the Indiana law. If you feel you must act for the benefit of all the states without the law, please make allowances in the law such that states can enhance the federal law with more strict rules as they individually deem necessary. As in our case I would hate to see you weaken our laws just to provide some protection for those without laws.

Thank you
